

I oppose any changes to the Wisconsin Do-Not-Call rules or laws that are less restrictive than they currently are. The differences between Wisconsin and federal laws is no different than differences in other state and federal laws, thus this point should not be an issue. Contrary to the Consumer Bankers Association's feelings that they want to call the consumer, we do not want them, or any other tele-marketing business calling us. If businesses want consistency in tele-marketing laws, that consistency should come in the form of adopting Wisconsin's tele-marketing laws as a national standard. Thank you for your attention.
